The Easter Budd of '07

Drawn for this page by Thomas
Mitchell
Peirce.

On this page is reproduced Thomas Mitchell Peirce's conception of an Easter girl. Her face reflects the spirituality that Mr. Peirce thinks is befitting this special season, and all womanhood at all seasons. There is a marked spirituality in all Mr. Peirce's faces of women. In this his work is distinguished from that of many of his brother illustrators, most of whom make roquetry or piquancy the dominant trait. Mr. Peirce asserts his opinion that a deep spirituality is the desirable distinction in womanhood, and he lays stress in all his drawings upon this trait.

He has always aimed to make refinement another prominent characteristic of all his pictures. "My girls are the girls of the home," is his motto. He has drawn the domestic girl and the girl who under them, whenever possible, amid home surroundings. When this is impossible he tries to show the influence of home environment and culture in every pose and expression.

In coloring, as in drawing, he makes refinement the keynote of his work. The Peirce girls are always garbed in exquisite, trailing robes of softest shawl and shadow.

In speaking before of Mr. Peirce's work we have said: "No other woman in the world, not even the Parisienne, has achieved such a jewel-like perfection of appearance as the wellbred American girl. Her dress, her show, her hair, her complexion, her hands, all exhibit such exquisite care and cultivation as to constitute for many men a great charm, apart from the essential beauty of her features."

Observe how well Mr. Peirce has brought out these qualities in his latest work. Note in any one of the Peirce girls the exquisite arrangement of her beautiful hair, the perfect taste of her dress and the general air of breeding and distinction which she bears. Note, also, the refined, clear-cut outline of her features and the admirable pose of her hand—some figure. She is not a fashion plate, but she is a girl of whom fashion is an obedient servant.

... Pope Leo XIII, of the same family and granted to him the title of duke. This was the son, and, like his father, also a bear by courtesy.

The beautiful Maria died whilst being taken to the convent of the Holy Spirit in the suburbs. To the mind of this loving husband, however, the former title far exceeded the latter.

The young Duke was impatient to leave the ceremony performed at once, but his father would not allow him to go, as he should not be left in ignorance of this serious step. So the news was dispatched to the Duke by a messenger, and he arrived at the Duke de la Isala, officer of the Pope's household.

At the storm broke. The old Duke was violently opposed to what he called a "dignit' matrimonio." He ordered his secretary to tell the young Duke that the old Duke did not realize the importance of this affair, and that he was impatiently ready to leave the beautiful first sweetheart.

On the following day, two years ago, Maria and Jan, accompanied by their

He told her that he was the victim of a kidnapping arrangement, but that he had been rescued by his father, and that his father was awaiting him in Paris. To Paris therefore he intended to go, and he begged his father's pardon for what he would soon return. The girl was surprised, but she obeyed.

Four days later she received a letter from her lover saying that he was at Vienna, but that he was unable to come to Paris. Although owing to lack of money, Nicholas Kurovic was not a chequre. The young Duke, however, was not deterred, and the ceremony was completed, but in a Catholic church.

At the wedding ceremony the duke went to the French Consulate to put his affairs in order, but the doors were closed

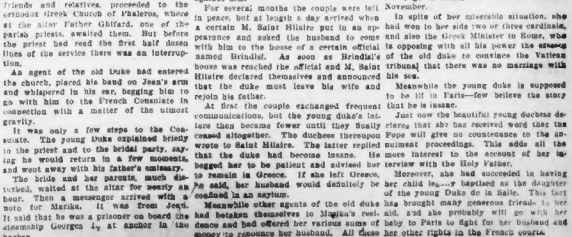

... she refused. One of these agents offered her three hundred thousand francs, $40,000, if she would say that she was the wife of the Duke de la Isala, and the young father was not her husband.

But with the greatest indignation she refused.

Her father, M. Kurosov, now lost his patience, and he went to the embassy, telling the agents of the duke and his father that the agents of the duke had rebuffed their offer, and that he was now ready to give his daughter, but she said she would not be married.

The young Duke's father, M. Kurosov, had written to the Pope, and a few weeks later Monsignor Ireland, the Roman Catholic ambassador in Paris, arrived in Paris. He told her that the Pope had received his letter and had charged the ambassador to tell her that the Pope was willing to give her the duke, but she said she would not be married, owing to the fact that the old duke de la Isala had presented to the Vatican a letter from the Pope, and that the Pope had refused to give her the duke.

Then M. Kurosov gathered together all his remaining money and urged his daughter to marry the duke.

Women Killing Men.

Is the Unwritten Law, "You Mustn't Hang a Woman," Responsible for the Astonishing Recent Epidemic of Murders of Jealousy, Rage and Revenge?

HAVE women, encouraged by the unwritten law, that, do what a man may, you must not hang a woman, started an epidemic of murder among their sex? In the sex, which has always been the more law-abiding, becoming the lawless city, by Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, Mrs. Hattie Brown, because of her husband's jealousy, and because of her husband's rage, and because of her husband's revenge, she has become the most dangerous of all.

But recent events seem to give the theory. The fact that one after another woman murderer has escaped the electric chair or the gallows seems to have given them courage for more.

Next month in Washington Mrs. Annie M. Bradley will be tried for shooting her husband, Arthur, Jr., and Montgomery Brown, was charged.

For Breaking His Promise.

After his wife's death, Mrs. Bradley was indicted for the murder of her husband, Arthur, Jr., and Montgomery Brown, was charged.

Probably the coldest blooded murder of all, the charge to which Mrs. Bradley was indicted for the murder of her husband, Arthur, Jr., and Montgomery Brown, was charged.

IRELAND'S NATIONAL DAY

THIS 17th day of March is the national day of one of the greatest and bravest nations that the human race has produced.

Nearly fourteen hundred years ago St. Patrick stood with a three-leafed shamrock in his hand in the king's palace of Tara, arguing against the Druids in favor of the religion that he had come to spread. IRELAND WAS A NATION THEN. It was a fighting nation.

It was a nation of poets as well as of fighters. Before St. Patrick landed in Ireland as a slave boy, a magnificent literature had been created by the genius of the Irish nation.

Every century and every year since those distant days the Irish nation has contributed to the world's progress, to the world's literature, to its statesmanship, to displays of human courage in every country and in every line of effort.

The men of Irish blood and Irish birth do well to remember this day, to keep alive the traditions of the race and to encourage those that are still fighting for the recognition of the nation of Ireland.

Long ago it was said that states, mere divisions of the soil, can be arbitrarily created by kings or tyrants. But A NATION cannot be created and it cannot be destroyed.

What IS a nation?

It is a body of human beings so powerful and united in their race feeling, so deeply devoted to the soil and to the memories and principles of the land of their birth, that in every man's heart there is indifference to personal welfare and to life itself as compared with the welfare of the land, THE NATION.

The nation is a body of men that develop the genius to give expression to national feeling in literature, in music, and especially in willing self-sacrifice. The nation develops an intense love of country that gives to the land such men as Robert Emmet in thousands and in tens of thousands.

Ireland was in every sense a nation long before the little boy, St. Patrick, was kidnapped from France and taken to the country that he Christianized. And Ireland, with the marvellous Celtic blood, will continue AS A NATION to be a great power and inspiration in the affairs of the world long after some of our little geographical divisions shall have melted away, long after a few bankers and manufacturers in England shall have ceased to invent schemes for impoverishing one nation for the benefit of another.

France and Italy combined to contribute to Ireland that man of great genius and courage, St.

This Picture Shows How Robert Emmet Died. The Land of His Birth Is Still a Nation, Despite the Oppression of Centuries. A Nation Cannot Be Destroyed When It Has Men Like Emmet to Fight for It

Patrick. On his father's side he was of patrician Roman blood, hence the name Patricius, or Patrick.

On his mother's side he inherited the fighting blood of the Gauls, the blood of Vercingetorix, that fought against Rome as Ireland has fought against England. He had in him the blood of the French, a NATION that could not be destroyed, that ultimately absorbed and made a part of itself the attacking Roman forces.

St. Patrick had the right blood. He had great genius and courage. He ignored personal danger and even braved the Irish king's wrath in his determination to benefit the Irish people that he knew and loved.

Children are taught that he drove the snakes out of Ireland. May the sons of Ireland honor his name and emulate his example, until they shall have driven out of Ireland the last remaining snake, with the Union Jack marks around his body, the snake that represents the concentrated oppression and injustice of centuries.

In this editorial we combine the name of Robert Emmet with that of St. Patrick. They stand out in Ireland's history as examples of pure morality and high courage.

You could fill this whole newspaper with names in fine print of men that have died for Ireland as willingly as Robert Emmet did, and another such with the names of Irishmen that have fought for freedom in other countries, from the Argentine almost to the North Pole, and from Spain to California.

This country has especial reason to be grateful to the Irish nation. To our shores have come millions of able, high-minded young men of Irish blood, and millions of women from the nation that unquestionably is, so far as its women go, THE MOST MORAL NATION IN THE WORLD.

This country can never be sufficiently grateful for the splendid strain which Ireland has given. And it can never express adequately its detestation of the brutal injustice that drove those many millions of human beings from their beloved home.

Fortunately, even in depopulated, famine-stricken, unjustly treated Ireland, there is still the old force, the old national power.

Take off the pressure of unjust laws, restore to the people the right to development in their own way, and Ireland, THE NATION, will be glorious and powerful among the nations of the world. Such a day will come, for injustice tires itself out in the end, and the Irish power for resistance will not be worn out. It is born of an inexhaustible spring of patriotism that will flow forever.

America owes a great deal to the best races of the Old World. This is the day for Americans to reflect upon what they owe to the example and the blood of IRELAND, and to express their appreciation, sympathy and thanks.

ROME, March 16.—Through the
BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN
His Holiness, Pope Pius X., sends
a blessing to the "children of Ireland"
in Boston and other parts of New England.

During one of the most remarkable interviews the Pontiff has ever granted
to one from the outside world he wrote
his message to his children in the faith
in New England on the back of one
of his own photographs.

When the BOSTON AMERICAN
representative referred to the desiring of the sons and daughters of Erin in New England to the Church, the Pope said:
"It is not necessary to tell me that. I have had many proofs of it. I bless them for it."

"I will give them a special blessing
voluntarily."

Then His Holiness took a pencil and wrote this message on the back of one
of his photographs:

"To my beloved children of Ireland
who live in America
I write through the intercession of St. Patrick they may ever prove faithful to the traditions of their country. I send blessings from my heart."

Blessing from the Heart.
As he blessed his signature he said:
"I have blessed my Irish children in America with all my heart."

The audience the BOSTON AMERICAN
representative had with the saintly
chief of the Catholic Church was arranged through Monsignor Blais, the pontifical major domo.

His Holiness received the correspondent in a large room in which he was seated in the side of a great hall. He was wearing a white robe and a white cassock, and he was wearing a white
cassock and a white cassock.

Photograph of Pope Pius X. taken in the famous Vatican Gardens and presented with his benediction in his own handwriting upon it, to William Randolph Hearst, as a mark of appreciation for the aid Mr. Hearst gave to the thousands of sufferers in the Venetian eruption of a year ago. The benediction, which was written on the picture, is in Latin. Here is the translation:
May Almighty God shower blessings upon you. Given at the Vatican, July 31, 1906.—Pius X., Pope.

ROME, March 16.—Through the
BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN
His Holiness, Pope Pius X., sends
a blessing to the "children of Ireland"
in Boston and other parts of New England.

During one of the most remarkable
interviews the Pontiff has ever granted
to one from the outside world he wrote
his message to his children in the faith
in New England on the back of one
of his own photographs.

When the BOSTON AMERICAN
representative referred to the desiring of
the sons and daughters of Erin in New England to the Church, the Pope said:
"It is not necessary to tell me that. I have had many proofs of it. I bless
them for it."

"I will give them a special blessing
voluntarily."

Then His Holiness took a pencil and
wrote this message on the back of one
of his photographs:

"To my beloved children of Ireland
who live in America
I write through the intercession of St. Patrick they may ever prove faithful to the traditions of their country. I send blessings from
my heart."

Blessing from the Heart.
As he blessed his signature he said:
"I have blessed my Irish children in America with all my heart."

The audience the BOSTON AMERICAN
representative had with the saintly
chief of the Catholic Church was arranged through Monsignor Blais, the pontifical major domo.

His Holiness received the correspondent in a large room in which he was seated in the side of a great hall. He was wearing a white robe and a white
cassock, and he was wearing a white
cassock and a white cassock.

ARCHBISHOP WILLIAMS'S GREETING FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Given at the Archbishop's Residence by His Grace the Most Rev. Archbishop John J. Williams, D. D.

"ALL PRAISE to Saint Patrick!" No other expression could be at once so brief and so expressive. It breathes forth respect, veneration, homage, and, greatest of all, love—for a saint and for the faith he taught. Centuries of oppression have not crushed that love. It will live always for Ireland's Faith and Ireland's Saint.

2,000 PETITION UNCLE SAM TO AID MAN HURT IN HIS EMPLOY

JOSEPH MANNING.

JOSEPH MANNING CRIPPLED AT WORK

Knights of St. Brendan to Give Concert and Dance for His Benefit.

Five hundred Knights of St. Brendan, assisted by 150 ladies of St. Brendan, in co-operation with the New England Order of Protection, are preparing for a grand concert and ball which they are to give in Paine Memorial Hall, probably on May 15, the proceeds to be devoted to the relief of a fellow knight, Joseph Manning, who, on May 26 last, while at work in the post office building, was terribly injured by a stone which fell from a coping, crushing his thigh.

Since then Manning has been helpless and the fracture of his thigh has never been successfully reduced. He and his wife live at No. 52 Jordan street, Roxbury. Manning is helpless, though only thirty-three years of age, and it has been only through the benevolence of a brother knight of St. Brendan that they have a roof over their heads.

Federal aid was sought in vain for Manning and a petition outlining more than 2,000 names was sent to Congress asking that a special bill be introduced for the relief of the unfortunate man.

James M. Manning, president of the Knights of St. Brendan, is the one who has taken the lead in the case, and it is the hope of the committee that the bill will be introduced in the next Congress.

Mr. Manning is unable to walk about his home on crutches, but he says that it will be a year or so before he will be able to get about the streets and that his future is very uncertain. He is now in the hospital at St. Vincent's, where he is being treated by Dr. J. J. Connelley. He is now in the hospital at St. Vincent's, where he is being treated by Dr. J. J. Connelley. He is now in the hospital at St. Vincent's, where he is being treated by Dr. J. J. Connelley.

Scannell Heads Committee.
The Ladies of St. Brendan met last Monday night to lay plans for aiding the benefit. The New England Order of Protection is to name a committee to act with the Knights of St. Brendan. The committee is to be composed of the Knights of St. Brendan and the Ladies of St. Brendan.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Richard Mansfield, the actor, is being sued for $50,000 by Emma Dunn, who until last Thursday night was his leading woman in the production of "Peer Gynt." She charges that he was beaten nearly in full view of the audience with such force that she may be a cripple for life. She says she was hurled against the curtain and that she has been unable to work since.

Says Actor Beat Her
My experience has been that I was never so badly beaten as I was on the night of March 14th.
I was in the third row of the audience and I saw him strike me with his fist and throw me against the curtain.

drop a bombshell that will pretty near quiet the petitioners."

From one of those who is in close touch with the defenders of Mrs. Mary Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, whose relatives have sued officials of the church for an accounting of her affairs, comes this statement to-night.

"That is all. No further will one of the leaders do in a statement. It seems to resign support amongst those who have been intrusted with the task of defending the big suit that is being prosecuted by former United States Senator William E. Chandler

WHY CARS GO BETTER AT NIGHT THAN DURING DAY

Experts Have Disagreed for Years on Question Thomas People Have Solved

Sooner or later the man who owns an automobile is confronted with a carburetor that will not act just right. Perfectly as the float feed may be regulated and adjusted at the right point the mixture will vary according to weather conditions and the temperature. Excess fuel

For better on the question of why a carburetor better at night than in the daytime. As soon as one theory has been put forward a dozen instances have been cited to disprove it. The question is one that demands solving.

In the early days of automobiles it was necessary to change the mixture for the carburetor when a hill was encountered, when a sandy road loomed up or when rain threatened. That was before the carburetor had been brought to its present state of perfection in which the only point to be changed is that of night and day running and their discharges.

Possibly the nearest answer to this question is the water in the carburetor.

MYSTERY SHROUDS WHITNEY CONFERENCES WITH BRYAN

McNary Refuses to Discuss Gubernatorial Possibilities, but Gossip Is Busy.

All sorts of rumors are about the meeting of William B. Bryan and Henry W. Whitney in the city last night. Although Whitney denies that he has any official connection with the campaign, the rumors are not without foundation.

PURITY OF PRODUCT
Commands the Consumer's Confidence
When Cascarets Candy Cathartic were invented in 1896, and the formula was perfected after much experimental labor by highly scientific chemists, it was our aim not only to produce a perfect combination of EFFECTIVE CONSTITUENTS, but to have every ingredient the very best in point of PURITY and QUALITY that could be obtained.

We established a standard of PURITY and QUALITY and MEDICAL STRENGTH that has been maintained for all these years, and every Cascarets tablet has been as harmless, pure, gentle and effective as every other one.

The substances that enter into a medicinal formula, to produce the desired effect, to be SAFE and ever TRUSTWORTHY, MUST be clean, fresh, carefully selected and compounded with painstaking supervision.

The eternal vigilance necessary to secure the ingredients of Cascarets in the most PERFECT CONDITION, so as to get the best effect without any danger from intruding substances, has never been relaxed.

What is the result?
There has been no disappointment, never a complaint. The people of America are today buying over ONE MILLION BOXES of Cascarets Candy Cathartic, a recognition of their dependable qualities to do what is claimed for them, as the best medicine FOR THE BOWELS as yet discovered.

Our patrons are all our friends, loyal and more than satisfied of the medical HOMEOPATHY of our preparation. It is today the greatest FAMILY MEDICINE in the world.

ARTISTS AT ONCE FALL CAPTIVE TO TROOPS OF THE DIMPLED WONDERS

Long and Patient Study Leads to Chosen Five in Third Week of Sunday American's Search for "Ideal" Little Ones.

FREE PHOTO OFFER IS ANNOUNCED TO-DAY.

NEVER in the history of newspaper contests has such widespread and keen interest been felt as in that which the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN started three weeks ago to find out who was the prettiest baby in Greater Boston. This is not alone because of the fact that $1,500 is to be spent to find out really who is the prettiest baby, but the novelty of the contest and because the pride of fond mothers and fathers has been stirred to the core.

GREAT CONTEST GROWS IN DAILY INTEREST.

Each day the interest is growing in the great contest. Photographs in really immense numbers are being received, and still they come. And no one need hesitate to enter a child in the race because baby has no good photograph and because it is inconvenient to pay for another right at this time. Arrangements have been made for free photographs, to be taken by some of Boston's best photographers, just for use in this contest.

It has come to the ears of those in charge of this contest that there are many pretty baby boys and girls in Greater Boston whose present photographs do not do them justice. In order that such children may have a better chance, the management of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has made a special arrangement for prize photographs, to be taken free, strictly for prize contest purposes.

By this arrangement, any baby may be taken to any one of four photograph studios, to be hereafter named, and may have a photograph taken free of charge, this photograph to be sent to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for entrance to the Prize Baby Contest and not to be used for any other purpose.

WHERE TO GET FREE PHOTO FOR CONTEST.

The names of these four studios where the Prize Contest photograph may be taken free of charge are:

Chickering, No. 31 West street.
Maresau, No. 160 Tremont street.
Glines, No. 523 Washington street.
Siegel Studio, Henry Siegel Company building, Washington and Essex streets.

Let the parents understand this offer distinctly. If there is no good photograph of baby, which will show the little one in all his or her baby perfection, then go to one of these four studios and say that you wish a photograph of baby taken for the Prize Baby Contest of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. The photographer will take one photograph free, to be sent to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN for this contest.

Winners of the Third Week.

Today the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN prints the names and photos of the prize baby winners for the third week of the contest.

Dorothy Remington Ayles, one year old, entered by Mrs. James Ayles, No. 154 Auburn street, Cambridge.

June Daley, thirteen months old, entered by Mrs. T. D. Daley, No. 145 Belmont street, Everett.

Grace McCarthy, three years two months old, entered by E. J. McCarthy, No. 155 Cherry street, Chelsea.

Shirley Marion Thomas, four years ten months old, entered by A. M. Thomas, No. 15 Linden avenue, Malden.

Dorothy Vernon Tucker, two years five months old, entered by Mrs. F. E. Tucker, No. 44 Monroe street, Roxbury.

Under the rules of the contest the names of the fourth group of five winners will be printed Sunday.

Each of the children whose photographs are printed today, like the winners in the first and second groups of the two preceding weeks, will receive an order for $10 (ten) worth of photographs at any of the best photograph studios in the city.

Great Popular Wave.

This Prize Baby Contest has taken an extraordinary hold on the interest of the Greater Boston public, as proved by the hundreds of photographs of pretty babies which are being entered.

The reason for the general interest is not hard to understand.

"Of course," some one may say, "there's a weekly chance at a $10 prize and a chance for every baby, also, for the $500 grand prize."

Everyone should know better than this, however. Every mother of a blessed baby does know better.

The real reason is one far more far-reaching, far more worthy and far more sympathetic than a mere desire for the ultimate value of the prize.

It is even deeper than the general human wish of every parent for his or her particular baby to win a prize and so be renowned over other babies.

Who is Prettiest Baby?
Of course, every mother thinks her

THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

WRITE on the back of each photograph the name and age of the child and the name and address of parent or guardian. All photographs should be presented at LEITCHES LANE, Boston, where they will be received. No baby who has five or six years of age is eligible. For the purpose of this contest, Greater Boston includes Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Somerville, Everett, Malden, Woburn, Haver, Melrose, Lynn, Medford, Arlington, Belmont, Watertown, Newton, Brookline, Hyde Park, Milton and Quincy.

All communications to The Baby Contest Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street.

PRIZES:

To each of the five prettiest babies selected each week by the judges, $10 worth of photographs at some of Boston's finest studios.

To the prettiest baby in Greater Boston, $500, to be deposited in trust and accumulate interest until the child is eighteen years old.

For the best photograph of baby and mother, taken together, $100.

To be compared to make selection and finally to give the one selected as the most beautiful of the line.

baby the prettiest, the most wonderful little bundle of humanity whom a generous Creator allowed to bless a grateful world. But, beyond this individual prize, is a general mother and parent interest in the whole subject of babyhood.

So the subject of a baby contest of any kind strikes a responsive chord wherever one and women live and breathe and have or hope to have babies of their own.

The general subject of babyhood is one of wide interest. The little babies, however, when one takes the absorbing subject of babies and joins thereto the added excitement of choosing the most beautiful baby, you have a combination of human interests that is as attractive as well as attractive as a baby, say.

To be immortalized in Art.

That is the real underlying reason why there is such general interest in this Prize Baby Contest. But, as every contest implies a victor and as every victor is worthy of his victory, so the winner of the contest, the baby of all beautiful babies, is entitled to a prize. Not an insignificant prize, but one suitable to the occasion.

Since the $500 award for the most beautiful baby in Greater Boston, hence the weekly prize of $10 worth of photographs to five babies, to be selected from week to week.

Further than this, the winner of the grand prize is to be immortalized in art. One of the judges in the contest, a famous woman artist, has declared she will paint a portrait of the winner of the grand prize. Thus the face of the beautiful child will live in the art, clung to baby features have settled into the eternal mould of later life.

For the complete list of the babies entered in the Beauty Contest, see March 8 and 15th issues, see page 46.
